Planning Restorative Outcomes

addresses two key questions.

What happened to bring this young person to this place in his or her life?

What can, and should, be done now to promote healthy growth, resilience and healing?

Strengths & Needs

Focus on Needs

rather than impairments, disabilities, or pathology.

William C. Morse
University of Michigan

Being Strength-based

is more about what we see and acknowledge than what we do.

Children, youth, and families have strengths that can help them through challenging times. Focusing on identifying, developing, and using these assets is the heart of strength-based planning.

John Lyons (2009)

Planning Restorative Outcomes

Requires a shift in thinking

Deficit Thinking and Fault Finding

Discovering and Supporting Strengths

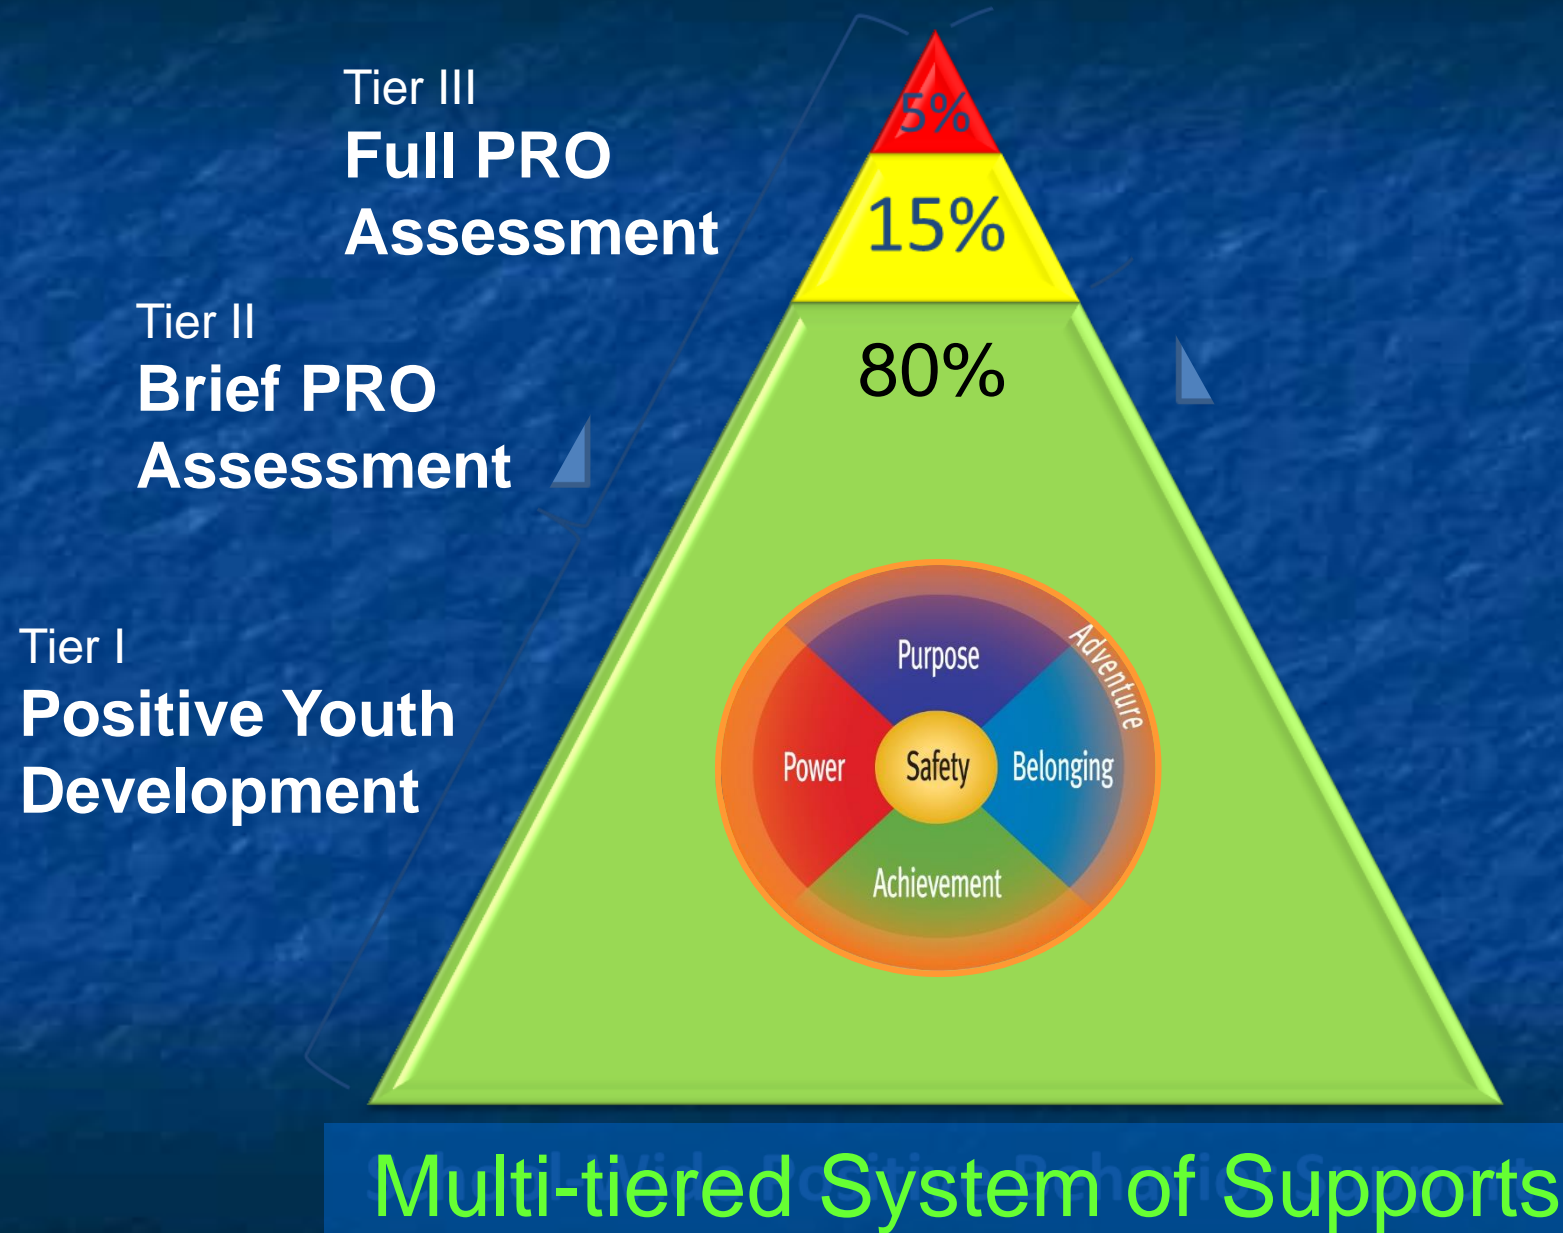

The question is not “What is wrong with you?”
It is “What has happened to you?”

Sandra Bloom, 1997

The Three Level Approach

- Level I – Crisis Prevention and Resolution Informs the treatment or service planning process
- Level II – Positive Growth Planning Stability or Transition Decisions
- Level III – Risk and Needs Assessment
Justice System Decisions

Planning Restorative Outcomes

A Daubert Challenge

Four PRO Components

1. Review and analysis of available records
2. Scanning the ecology of the child
3. Scanning the child's developmental pathway
4. Identifying needs to address in a restorative plan

The Solution: CONSILIENCE

By tapping diverse disciplines, we can discover powerful simple truths.

Youth Give Their Opinions of Assessment

Focus on now and tomorrow rather than dwell in the painful past.

Find hope even in the presence of problems.

We resist intrusive questions that we find “irrelevant and demeaning.”

You need to set up a comfort zone. Don't just dive in.

- Russell

I avoid adults who act superior to us: "Do what I say or else!"

- Cindy

You've gotta let the kids connect with you, not force it.

EVENTS SHAPE LIFE PATHS

ALBERT BANDURA

Psychological theories have neglected the fundamental issue of what determines people's life paths....

chance encounters play a prominent role in shaping the course of human lives.

Bandura, 1982, p. 747

FOCUS ON EVENTS

Stick to the here and now, the actual process, the
demarked event,
and you will begin to understand.

The King of Cool

“We do not believe in ourselves until someone reveals that deep inside us something is valuable, worth listening to, worthy of our trust, sacred to our touch. Once we believe in ourselves, we can risk curiosity, wonder, spontaneous delight or any experience that reveals the human spirit. ”
